Bush pays visit to Southern Illinois

By Jane Grandolfo
Staff Writer

Vice President George Bush said Monday that despite its high unemployment rate, Southern Illinois "is on the right track" toward economic recovery because of President Reagan's policies.

Bush was in Southern Illinois for about five hours Monday in a campaign swing that included a tour of the SIU-C Coal Research Center near Carterville and Brushy Creek coal mine east of Marion.

About 75 people, mainly supporters, gathered at Williamson County Airport near Marion to greet the vice president's jet. There he took the opportunity to praise President Reagan's domestic and foreign policies and to explain the president's position on acid rain.

Addressing a group of reporters on the airport's runway, Bush said the Reagan administration has "a responsibility to the environment and to preserve jobs" when considering acid rain legislation.

"We want more research. We shouldn't take whatever anybody throws up in the air and accept it," Bush said.

Bush said that even though

Percy releases tax records, says Simon's charge is false

CHICAGO (AP) — Sen. Charles Percy, under pressure by opponent Paul Simon, to make public his tax returns, on Monday released financial data showing he and his wife paid 73 percent of their income in federal taxes last year.

The returns showed that the Republican incumbent and his wife, Loraine, paid $125,327 in taxes in 1983 on an adjusted gross income of $171,193.

However, the returns show an income far below that reported by Percy in financial disclosure statements filed with the Senate. Those records list Percy's 1983 income, including interest, dividends, and capital gains, as between $749,412 and $1.7 million or possibly higher.

Simon's campaign manager David Axelrod said the difference reflected Percy's use of tax laws to reduce his reportable income for income tax purposes.

The tax returns "show exactly what we expected," Axelrod said. "Senator Percy has availed himself of all these tax loopholes and shelters built in to the tax code to help millionaires reduce their taxes."

However, Kathy Lydon, Percy's press secretary, said the reason for the large discrepancy is the Senate forms don't list losses. "It greatly exaggerates what you make in a year," she said.

During the campaign, Percy has repeatedly been challenged by Simon to show he was not a beneficiary of Reagan administration tax cuts.

Carter Hendren, Percy's campaign manager, said the documents released show that Simon's charge that the incumbent benefited more than the average Illinoisan earns in one year is "totally groundless."

Hendren said because the Percys are required to use a special tax formula — an additional tax on taxpayers with more than $30,000 in capital gains — their tax rates were not affected by the 25 percent across-the-board reduction.

"The whole point of this was to show Simon's charge is untrue," said Lydon. "Simon has used this as a diversionary tactic."

Percy, who is seeking a fourth term in the Senate, had never previously released copies of his income tax returns.

Bicycle fines may drop by start of fall semester

By Karen Wiltberger
Staff Writer

Bicycle riders may have to pay only $5 to $10 for moving violations by fall 1985, but for now they can expect to pay the city's current $50 fine, said Carbondale police Lt. Bill Rypkema.

Rypkema said Monday that the Police Department has gone beyond the "informational stage" of giving out verbal and written warnings, and will give more attention in enforcing bicycle regulations.

He said the department will enforce bicyclists to stop at red lights, ride with traffic and to a lesser extent not ride on sidewalks and have a rear reflector and front light.

Despite the annual crackdown on bicyclists, Rypkema said many officers are reluctant to give out the tickets, of which the fine is equal to vehicle moving violations.

"Students can't afford a car, much less other expenses," said Rypkema.

McMeen said Monday that she is looking at two alternatives to reduce the $50 fine to $5 to $10. The first alternative is to reduce the cost of all bicycle violation fines comparable to parking fines. The other choice would be to develop an increased fine system in which the fines would start at about $5, and increase for second and third violations.

McMeen said she hopes to get a proposal to the City Council by the end of the semester. She said the move should be enacted by the fall, and possibly by summer.

GPSC to discuss fee increase proposal

By Darren Hillock
Staff Writer

A $16 fee increase recommended by the Student Center Board will be discussed at the Graduate and Professional Student Council meeting Wednesday.

A report prepared by Jay Cooper, GPSC representative to the Student Center Board, said that some of the reasons for the increase are that operating costs have increased 79 percent since fiscal year 1975 while fees have increased only 19 percent, and projected building deficits of $271,000 and $543,000 for fiscal years 1985 and 1986.

The report also said that the Student Center expects to be required to pick up the costs of fringe benefits of employees in the building.

Glenn Stolar, GPSC president, said that the GPSC's opinion on the increase is being sought by John Corker, Student Center director. Corker will then make recommendations to Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, before Swinburne goes before the Board of Trustees in November, he said.

The GPSC doesn't have a resolution on the increase yet, but Stolar said he wants to use the recommendations of the GPSC's two Student Center Board representatives as a starting point for drafting a resolution at the meeting.

U.S. envoy meets with Syrian president to discuss security

BEIRUT (AP) — A senior U.S. envoy on Monday conferred with Syrian President Hafez Assad in Damascus about security arrangements necessary for an Israeli withdrawal from Lebanon, then flew to Jerusalem. Lebanese Prime Minister Rashid Karami, expressing confidence about the diplomatic effort of U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Richard Murphy, was quoted by Beirut newspapers as saying, "It has been detected from the talks with Mr. Murphy that he was bringing the good tidings of an early breakthrough." The Israeli occupation of south Lebanon "will not last long," he was quoted as saying.

State Department urges OK of security funds

NEW YORK (AP) — The State Department disclosed Monday it is asking Congress to urgently approve another $372 million in emergency funds to improve security at American embassies in the wake of the terrorist bomb that devastated the U.S. Embassy annex in Beirut last week. John Hughes, the State Department spokesman, said the funds will be used to build and strengthen barricades around embassies, to speed up construction of some new embassies in "high threat areas," to provide armored vehicles and to control public access to certain embassies. Hughes said the Reagan administration wants the aid approved before the end of the current session of Congress, Oct. 4. Plans to upgrade security at U.S. embassies was first envisioned in 1979 as a response to mob attacks against U.S. facilities in Pakistan, Iran and Libya.

U.S. threatens withdrawal from atomic agency

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The U.S. delegation threatened Monday to withdraw from the International Atomic Energy Agency if Israel is not recognized. The Soviet Union later told the agency's annual conference that "aggressive circles of imperialism" are responsible for the arms race. The agency's main aim is peaceful use of nuclear energy, technical assistance to member countries and international controls to prevent diversion of nuclear material for non-peaceful purposes. But the weeklong meeting that opened Monday at Vienna's Hofburg Congress Center was expected to be faced with other political issues, including the participation of Israel in conference proceedings throughout. As in past years, delegates from some developing countries, which are a majority, might decide not to recognize Israel's credentials for attendance at the meeting.

Britain confirms device found is modern mine

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — British navy crews have confirmed that a device found in the Gulf of Suez was a modern mine and have taken it apart to determine its origin, a British Embassy source said. A series of explosions in the Red Sea, including the Gulf of Suez, began July 9 and damaged 19 ships. British divers found the cylinder nearly two weeks ago about 15 miles south of the entrance to the Suez Canal adjacent to the southbound shipping channel. The device was nearly 10 feet long and 1.5 feet thick.

City officials ask for halt on nerve gas testing

MARLBORO, Mass. (AP) — Cambridge officials asked a state judge Monday to halt the testing of deadly nerve gas and other chemical warfare agents at a private laboratory bordering a busy intersection less than two miles from Harvard University. Attorneys for the city asked Marlboro Superior Court Judge Robert Hallsey to rule that the city has the right to order a halt to the tests, being conducted by the Arthur D. Little consulting firm under contract with the Defense Department.

Finance leaders call for lower interest rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — One foreign finance leader after another told the United States on Monday it must lower its interest rates to protect the world economic recovery and ease pressure on heavily indebted poorer nations. At the start of a week-long meeting of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank, the officials expressed relief that the economy had improved markedly from the severe recession of recent years, but warned about complacency. Calls for U.S. action were led by Jacques de Larosiere, managing director of the 147-member IMF.

Finance leaders call for lower interest rates

LANSING, Kan. (AP) — Five prisoners, including three serving life terms for murder, escaped Monday from a prison dormitory where inmates' rooms have no bars, by sliding down an air shaft and sawing out with a hacksaw blade, authorities said. The inmates were discovered missing moments after the 1 a.m. escape from the Kansas State Prison building, and about 50 prison officials and state and local law enforcement officers immediately began searching between Lansing and Leavenworth, said prison spokesman Troy Baker.

Sangamo site may get money from Superfund

By Jeff Curl
Staff Writer

A hazardous waste dump site at Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge will get federal cleanup money if documents leaked to a U.S. Representative are accurate, says a spokeswoman with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Last Friday, U.S. Rep. James J. Florio, D-N.J., released documents he received anonymously that listed recent additions to a list of hazardous waste sites which the EPA says should have top priority in receiving funds under the federal Superfund cleanup program. The Superfund is federal money, but 80 percent comes from a tax on private chemical companies.

Judy Beck, of the U.S. EPA in Chicago, said the Sangamo dump site at Crab Orchard National Wildlife refuge is on Florio's list. Beck said if the Sangamo dump site appears on the official EPA list of priority hazardous sites, which comes out in October, then it will be eligible for Superfund funds. Only sites on the priority list can get Superfund money.

The Sangamo dump is owned by the U.S. Department of Interior. No federally owned land has ever appeared on the EPA list, said Greg Michand, a coordinator for the Illinois EPA in Springfield.

The Illinois EPA has ordered the U.S. Dept. of Interior to clean up the land, but the Interior Department has complained that it doesn't have the money to do so, Michand said. If the Interior Department obtains money for the project, it will fund an investigation of what wastes are at the site, where they are, and what would be the best way to clean them up, Michand said.

The site, formerly owned by the Sangamo Electric Company, has already shown to have highly toxic polychlorinated biophenols (PCB's), furans and dioxins, Michand said.

U.S. Sen. Charles Percy asked the chairman of the Energy and Natural Resource Committee last July for the addition of a provision to the Interior Appropriations bill giving money specifically for the Sangamo site, said Vince Maloney, Percy special assistant. The Senate will vote on the provision this week, and Maloney said he is confident it will pass, giving money to the Sangamo site immediately.

political science campaigns and elections class.

Reagan wants to narrow gap between U.S. and U.S.S.R.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — President Reagan, striking a conciliatory tone, said Monday he would work to narrow "the clear differences" between the United States and the Soviet Union. The president proposed high-level meetings that could be "essential, if crises are to be avoided."

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko listened with a poker face, hands folded in his lap, as Reagan addressed the 39th session of the United Nations General Assembly.

"America has repaired its strength ... We are ready for constructive negotiations with the Soviet Union," Reagan said.

The president, who once denounced Moscow as an "evil empire" that ultimately would be left on the "ash heap of history," adopted his most conciliatory line yet toward the Soviets in the speech, which came just over six weeks before the Nov. 6 election.

Reagan, pressed repeatedly by U.S. allies to soften his once harsh anti-Soviet rhetoric, was interrupted just once by applause, when he remarked:

"Outside this room, while there still will be clear differences, there's every reason why we should do all that is possible to shorten that distance. And that's why we're here."

Gromyko, impassive as ever, did not join in the clapping at that point or at the conclusion of Reagan's speech.

Spokesman Larry Speakes said U.S. ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick had told Reagan that General Assembly speeches aren't generally interrupted by applause, and that the Soviets in particular do not clap.

Reagan told reporters later that he and Gromyko had exchanged pleasantries during their five-minute encounter at a reception Sunday night, but refused to predict the outcome of their talks at the White House on Friday. The talks will represent Reagan's first formal meeting with a top Kremlin official during his presidency.

Addressing the charge that his hardline anti-communism has increased hostilities between the superpowers, Reagan suggested in his speech that new talks between U.S. and Soviet cabinet-level officials would provide a "fresh approach to reducing international tensions."

Reagan also called for a new "framework for arms control." Talks aimed at reducing nuclear weapons have been in limbo since last December, when the Soviets stalked out in anger over U.S. deployment of new nuclear missiles in Europe.

Asserting that "spheres of influence are a thing of the past," the president suggested that senior experts from both nations should begin regular "in-depth exchanges of views" on regional problems, such as Central America and the Middle East.

Separately, the president proposed that the United States and Russia "institutionalize regular ministerial or Cabinet-level meetings ... on the whole agenda of issues before us, including the problem of needless obstacles to understanding."

Opinion & Commentary

Reagan's accessibility lacking in campaign

ONE OF THE campaign issues of this election is President Reagan's accessibility, or lack of, to reporters and the public. Reagan has scheduled only two or three campaign appearances per week and never stays around long enough at each stop for reporters to ask him questions.

Part of the reasoning for Reagan's inaccessibility may be due to his lead in the polls. Reagan's advisers believe that since he has at least a 15 point lead in the polls, it is better to stay safe than be sorry by keeping him out of the spotlight.

In contrast, when Reagan was the challenger in 1980, there was a lot of communication between Reagan and the press. He sat for interviews and chatted with the reporters regularly. But during this campaign, only 11 reporters are allowed on Air Force One, with a separate plane for the rest of the press corps, and Reagan doesn't chat with the reporters or sit down for interviews.

CLEARLY, REAGAN'S staff is trying to keep him at arm's length from reporters during this campaign. Avoiding instances of foot-in-mouth disease, something that Reagan has been known to suffer, is part of the reason for the inaccessibility.

To a lesser extent there is inaccessibility by the press to George Bush, Walter Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro. They are essentially closed off to the press while traveling and are kept from making many impromptu conversations or interviews. Keeping the press from the politicians seems to be a new practice to protect the candidates. However, unlike Reagan, they do hold press conferences at each campaign stop.

Reagan's unavailability to the press and the public has resulted in Mondale calling Reagan the most isolated president in U.S. history. Mondale has said that Reagan campaign appearances are nothing more than "cameo appearances" and "photo opportunities." And he is right.

REAGAN, AT EACH campaign stop, gives just his speech and then heads back to the White House. This may eventually backfire for Reagan if the people begin to view him as being aloof or not addressing the issues completely.

Reagan aides have indicated that if Reagan's lead is still large by the end of October, he will meet with the press more often. Reagan himself would like to chat with the press more, but his aides won't let him. The president should meet with the press on a daily basis now, not later.

No matter what the polls say, Reagan should be allowed to answer a few questions at campaign stops, or when he is at the White House. It is only fair for the electorate to hear the president answer a few questions every now and then instead of only hearing his prepared speeches and seeing him from a distance.

Tailgaters add to 'party school' image

I would like to comment on the editorial in the Daily Egyptian on Sept. 21. I walked through the tailgate area on the way home from Neckers Building towards the end of the game. Essentially, it was nothing but a bunch of drunken kids with a few hostilities here and there. As far as the Daily Egyptian's comment concerning "tailgate parties are a grand old American football tradition," that's true. However, at the University of Illinois games, tailgating consists primarily of mature, legal, rational, alumni and their children having a picnic lunch, a few drinks, and then going to the game.

Let's be realistic. SIU-C is not renowned for its academic prowess and this certainly doesn't enhance it. Undergraduates come here because it's a "party school." If the SIU-C administration is so concerned about the quality of their undergraduate students, perhaps they should provide an atmosphere that would attract quality students. I have nothing against having fun but I feel that an increasing number of students haven't the foggiest notion of why they're in college. Consequently, we have students who relish going through life with a terminal hangover. College is (hopefully for sober students) a very short period of time in a person's life. If a person does not learn to produce academically and show some degree of moderation in their personal habits, they will inevitably become an early casualty in an increasingly competitive real world. Rather than perpetuate this "good time" image with the infinite number of distractions of which the University either supports or shows tacit disapproval, the University should provide for the serious student and let the winos and drunks go smoke butts in the gutter with their compatriots in downtown St. Louis.

I think SIU-C should focus more of its attention on attracting quality faculty and obtaining permanent research endowments to keep them here. The University of Illinois' reputation was not built on undergraduates. It was built on faculty reputation and scholarly endeavors. Quite frankly, I do not view a Chemistry 140B student "blowing their breakfast" all over the floor at 8 a.m. on a Tuesday morning as a "scholarly endeavor." We can put a 65 pound catfish in the Student Center, yet some of our best departments continue to lose prominent faculty members every year. Perhaps we should have an endowed "Catfish Chair in Advanced Inebriation."

My message to President Somit and Dr. Bruce Swinburne is that like osteoporosis, the backbone of the University is gradually degrading. I think it's time for SIU-C to lose its party image or else give up the notion of becoming an academic high roller.

— Charles Patrick McAtee, Graduate Student, Chemistry and Biochemistry.

Admissions policy should be tightened

Mr. D.G. DeFosse's letter exemplifies the need for college admission standards. His failure of logic and English usage are a potent argument for more careful preparation in English, mathematics and the sciences before college admission.

During and following our nation's greatest depression, thousands of men and women of few means attended college. Few of my peers were "rich kids," but they, and I, had goals and knew that anything of value must be earned. So we worked like hell to qualify for and to sustain ourselves in college. Many, such as I, worked to pay our way, without grants; I was fortunate enough, I admit, to enter by means of a state scholarship for demonstrated achievement in 4-H Club work.

The definition of "C" is average, competent work. Grades of "B" or "A" are meant to describe levels of work better than that. Unfortunately, grading has been abused — for example, the idiocy of "criterion-reference grading," which is fine for training but inadequate for educating. Where achievement of the mind is understood, the screening processes by which students are admitted do not automatically result in award of superior grades. In my own college days, a 2.0 was accurately described as "average," and at least one SIU-C college maintains an average grade point average near that level, by design.

The Illinois Board of Higher Education proposals do not nullify one's chances to qualify for college admission by going back to high school, attending remedial programs in continuing education or at junior colleges, or by other means. The point is that one should earn his or her way into and through college, not to be given it as an unqualified right. Otherwise, the meaning of excellence is lost.

A University of Texas football coach, Mr. Royal, bemoaned the then-popular "human potential movement" by observing, "I don't want a football team that feels good about itself but doesn't know how to line up." Amen.

— Donald MacDonald, Associate Professor, Speech Communication.

Stop harassment of senior citizens

Dear Gov. Thompson: When we were elected governor most all the voters pro and con were of one accord. May the best man win, and perhaps he will understand the people. To do this he must forfeit all of the old-time tactics that politics embraced, and in its place realize that the voters of the public sector, acting the part of a foster family, actually adopted him, and all he had to do was keep clean and big and strong in case his family needed him.

As a faithful member of the public sector, I would like for your office to pick up the torch, just like they did in the Olympics and proclaim no more harassment of senior citizens by political stooges. These stooges go by a more dignified name, as volunteers for the surplus food program. I can't say they don't do their job well, making sure that senior citizens living on Social Security, with little or no food stamps, receive cheese only, no matter what else is on the agenda. I'm quite aware how busy your office is, but as your personal feelings were always with the senior citizens.

We are calling on you because not only are we being stripped of our rights, but your office will be undermined by ideas you have no knowledge of, or would not tolerate. — Leonard Clara, Elco.

Struggle for survival prolongs Iran-Iraq war

I am writing this letter in response to the letter by Tariq M. Hasson published in the Daily Egyptian regarding the Iran-Iraq war.

The whole letter was nothing but disinformation and blatant lies in an attempt to camouflage the policy of inhumane aggression by the Baa'thist regime of Iraq.

Iraq gained its independence from Britain in 1932. But Britain continued its military protection of Iraq under a 1930 treaty. During this period Iran's claim over the Shatt-Al-Arab waterway which divided the two countries and was controlled by Iraq was left unanswered.

Finally, in 1975 Iran signed a treaty with the military controlled Baa'thist regime of Iraq which provided both countries equal access to the waterway. This treaty was signed by the then shah and Saddam Hussein, then vice president of Iraq.

However, one year after the Iranian revolution, Saddam Hussein launched an all-out attack against the Islamic Republic. He assumed that Iran, having suffered from economic sanctions imposed by the United States and other western countries and having a weak military, could in no way tolerate major assault.

But on the contrary, four years of heroic resistance, struggle, and the martyrdom of Iranian forces reduced Saddam's dreams to nightmare. The aggressor was pushed back to his box and most of the occupied territories were liberated.

Thus, once Saddam found his own existence at stake, he started the most atrocious tactics. He bombarded the residential areas, hospitals and schools with chemical weapons and nerve gas. This resulted in a massacre of tens of thousands of innocent, defenseless civilians, including the large scale destruction of the populated areas. The best example of this brutal action is attested in the report of the U.N. mission to the Security Council. According to this report, in the Iranian city of Hoveyze, "the mission saw that the whole area had been leveled, except for two buildings."

However, Saddam's new policy is the internationalization of the dispute. He simply tries to extend the regional conflict to an international scale by attacking the oil cargo ships in the Persian Gulf.

Due to the nature of war monger Saddam Hussein, which has been demonstrated by the breaking of his own treaty with Iran, there cannot be any long lasting peace in the area. In such an unstable situation, we have to stay alert under the almighty God to defend our faith and our territory.

— Ali Ghane, Senior, Engineering. Editor's note: This letter was signed by five other people.

the areas unemployment rate is between 15 percent to 20 percent. Reagan's economic recovery plan has helped and will continue to be more effective than any solutions Democratic leaders have devised.

Blasting presidential hopeful Walter Mondale and the proposed Democratic Jobs Program, Bush said their program would cost $3.5 billion, while the Republican recovery has already provided "300,000 jobs a month for the next six months."

Bush said the best solution to the nation's economic troubles will be to continue to expand exports, lower interest rates and "use the federal program we've got and keep plugging away at the deficit."

While the Bush campaigned in Southern Illinois, Reagan addressed the United Nations in New York. Bush said Reagan was there to discuss the possibility of annual meetings between representatives of the Soviet Union and the United States. "It's always a boost for foreign policy when the president addresses that body," Bush said.

Bush said the annual U.S.-Soviet meetings Reagan is proposing should not be confused with the annual summits Mondale is calling for.

"We're not going along with what Walter Mondale is proposing. It's very different," Bush said. Reagan proposes meetings between administrative and cabinet members rather than the highest leaders of both countries, Bush said.

"There's a difference between the cabinet level and the General Secretary of the Communist Party," Bush said. "We're talking about formalizing relations in the cabinet

One option, Stolar said, is to take different levels of funding and vote on them, though he would prefer not to do that.

Also before the council will be a proposal to start a Computing Priorities Committee. Goals for the committee would be to survey graduate students to determine their computing needs, prioritize the needs and formulate guidelines on how to adapt to the new computer purchase recently approved by the Board of Trustees, Stolar said.

If the council says it doesn't need the committee, Stolar will have the students who have already expressed an interest in this area work with him, he said.

Thompson OKs emissions test bill

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Governor Thompson signed legislation Monday to require auto-emissions testing in the Chicago and East St. Louis areas, saying he did so to avert a threatened cutoff in federal highway aid.

Thompson said he had no choice but to sign the proposal even though he objected to a provision requiring that tax money be used to pay for the tests.

"If I were to veto or change (it) ... hundreds of millions of dollars in federal highway funds could be taken away from us over the next several years," the governor said in a statement.

level — we have to keep it there," he said.

Bush said the Reagan administration has yet to adopt a forgive-and-forget attitude with the Soviets, but that the "trauma is reduced" and an "ugly feeling" has been lost.

On hand to greet the vice president in his first campaign stop in Southern Illinois was

Gov. James Thompson, Rep. Ralph Dunn of Du Quoin and Rep. Robert Winchester of Rosiclare.

In a roped-off area near Bush's U.S. Air Force jet, Republican supporters chanted "four more years", while a small group of protesters waved signs advocating "No MX", and "Pro-Choice."

Play to re-enact an historical meeting

By Elaine Wilkinson
Student Writer

For the second time in 113 years, two famous 19th century Americans will briefly cross paths.

A re-enactment of the March 31, 1871 meeting of President U.S. Grant and Sojourner Truth will be presented by the Playwright's Theater at 7 p.m. Tuesday in Cisne Auditorium, Pulliam Hall Room 34.

Admission to the program, which will be presented by two actors who came to SIUC as performers and stayed to pursue graduate studies in the Theater Department, will be $2. Proceeds will benefit future productions of Playwright's Theater.

The program includes excerpts from the one-person shows written by the actors. Both shows, "Ain't I a Woman" by Shirleen Holmes and "U.S.

Grant: A Man and a Patriot" by Dan Haughey, have been in continuous performance for several years.

After viewing an Inge Hardison sculpture of Sojourner Truth, Holmes was inspired to write a mono-drama on the life of the black abolitionist and suffragette. "What struck me most was her piety, fearlessness and strength," Holmes said. "She's my hero."

In 1828, at the age of 44, Sojourner Truth literally walked out on her life of slavery. She spent the remainder of her 86 years crusading for the rights of blacks and women. Illiterate and traveling long distances on foot, she was a close friend of other important abolitionists of her day, including Frederick Douglas and Harriet Beecher Stowe. She campaigned for Grant's presidency and was responsible for the desegregation of trolley cars in Washington D.C.

For Holmes, the performance is "almost like walking in the shoes of Sojourner Truth."

"When I do her, I get the strength to keep on going," Holmes said. "I do her for me."

Haughey's one-man show was written three years ago, co-sponsored by the Ohio Outdoor Drama Association and the East Tennessee Historical Society. He brings a longtime fascination with Grant, as well as an impressive list of professional credits, to his interpretation.

Haughey said he would like to correct the large number of misconceptions and misunderstandings about Grant. "I have always been intrigued with the depth of character he expresses in memoirs," Haughey said. "He had a very tender relationship with his wife." Also, according to Haughey, Grant's reputation as a two-fisted drinker is undeserved.

Little is known about Sojourner Truth's interview with President Grant. She presented him with a petition requesting the establishment of a free Negro state in the West. The meeting was brief and private. But that Sojourner Truth was even received at the White House is a measure of the respect accorded her in her own time.

Holmes and Haughey will re-enact the historical meeting by improvisation, drawing on their intimate knowledge of the characters and interpretive skills.

Woody Allen play funny, full of action

By Elaine Wilkinson
Student Writer

Woody Allen's rapid-fire comedy, "Don't Drink the Water," under the expert, fast-paced direction of Archibald McLeod, opens The Stage Company's third season.

The play will run two more weekends, Sept. 28, 29 and 30 and Oct. 5, 6 and 7.

This contemporary farce is populated with the variety of wacky eccentrics one would expect to find in an Allen play. Although some topical references were modified or deleted in order to update the dialogue, the flavor of the 1960s remains in the costuming, as well as in references to President Kennedy, draft dodgers and the pill.

THE HOLLANDER family — Walter, Marian and daughter Susan — runs afoul of the not-so-secret police while vacationing in an unidentified Iron Curtain country. Accused of being American spies, they race for the American Embassy with the authorities hot on their heels.

The ambassador is away, leaving his well-intentioned but incompetent son Axel in charge. Axel bungles the crisis, the police lay siege to the embassy and the Hollanders become unwilling guests of the government.

Jim Crowner is outstanding as

A Theater Review

Father Drobney, the underground activist and amateur magician. His comedic timing and characterization are near perfection. Crowner obviously has great fun in his role, plunging wholeheartedly into the slapstick direction of McLeod.

WALTER Hollander, the bewildered caterer from Newark, N.J., is hilariously portrayed by Don Bailey. Bailey has the funniest lines in a very funny show, and his delivery does them full justice. As a middle-aged tourist caught in a political squeeze play, Bailey manages to keep his character inoffensive, even when Walter seems determined to be an angry American. His I'm-an-American-and-you-can't-do-this-to-me outrage is a wonderful contrast to the manic glow which overwhelms him when, gun in hand, he finally agrees to Axel's nutty escape plan.

Mary Henry as Marian Hollander gives a solid performance. Her Jersey housewife, bossy and practical, has just the right touch of dimwit, a la Edith Bunker. Henry and Bailey never miss a beat.

Jazzman Chick Corea to play

Jazz pianist Chick Corea will appear in concert with his septet Tasha, at 8 p.m. Monday Oct. 8 at the Shryock Auditorium.

Tickets for the concert, sponsored by the Student Programming Council, are $10 and $12 and are available at the Student Center central ticket office.

Special guest of the group, which along with Corea includes Fred Sherry on cello, Ida Kavalin and Theodore Arm on violin, and Steve Tenedom on viola, will be Steve Kujala on french horn.

Corea, whose mastery of the keyboards and composition has made a lasting impression on contemporary music in the United States as well as the rest of the world, attributes his success to his early influences, which include such diverse artists as Bartok, Beethoven, Miles Davis, Bill Evans and Charlie Parker.

During musical career, Corea has worked with many different artists. His numerous recordings include "Duet," a collaboration with vibist Gary Burton which won a Grammy Award for Best Instrumental Jazz Performance in 1978.

AXEL MAGEE, kicked out of Africa and hung in effigy by the American Embassy in Panama, is played by David Flavin. Flavin's wild-eyed desperation when Axel ruins his last chance to make good, and his clumsy romantic pursuit of Sisam, are the best parts of a good job of acting.

As the only comparatively straight, major character in a loony cast, Becky Ronaghy, as Susan Hollander, makes a difficult role look natural. She is the quintessential ingenue, very pretty, appealing and sweet without being syrupy. Ronaghy and Flavin carry off their comic love scenes with great style.

Dennis Moran as Krojack and Linda Allen as Ms. Kilroy are divided only by their opposing political persuasions. Both play the humorless, strictly-by-the-book civil servant to the hilt. Each has a moment worth special mention. Moran's Krojack loses his cool, rushing to catch his "spies" while confined in a straitjacket. Allen shines as Ms. Kilroy after she is knocked silly by a brick and believes herself to be both Orville and Wilbur Wright.

SHANNON Bump as Ambassador Magee, William duVallion as Burns, Cara Webster as Cook and Steve Falcone as the Sultan of Bashir give their own individual touches to these well-acted supporting roles.

The giggling, mincing Sultan's first wife is played by Karen Stallman. Michael Lecker, in the non-speaking part of Novotny, almost stole a couple of scenes by merely standing at attention.

Curtain time for "Don't Drink the Water" is 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, and 2 p.m. Sundays. Single admission is $5 and advance ticket purchase is recommended. For further information, call The Stage Company Box Office at 549-5465.

Dance scenes in Carmen don't rescue sinking movie

By Morgan Falkner
Staff Writer

A limited re-release of "Carmen," Carlos Saura's 1983 film based on Bizet's opera, is now being shown in Carbondale.

The film will be shown at the Saluki Theater through Thursday and at the SPC Auditorium in the Student Center on Sunday.

Saura's "Carmen" — there are several versions of the Carmen story — attempts to operate on several levels, with the one unifying bond being the sheer eroticism of Carmen, played here by Laura del Sol. It fails despite a strong beginning and some admirable qualities.

"Carmen" literally belongs to choreographer and male lead Antonio Gades, who took his considerable talent and knowledge of flamenco dance and collaborated with Saura to create an erotic film of dance opera. Virtually the entire movie was shot in Gades' home, which is also an elaborate dance studio.

From the film's opening shot of Gades directing a line of dancers to just about every subsequent dance scene, the primordial staccato created by the dancers' steps along with the eerie graininess of Saura's photography blended to give the film a delicious sensuality.

Unfortunately, the film's captivating mood cannot save what is otherwise a doomed effort.

Briefly, the story behind the original "Carmen," from which Saura's version borrows, is of a "wild, devilish woman" who kills another woman and, like the mythological Greek Sirens, seduces a man, Don Jose, to help her escape.

Gades, in addition to his choreography duties, also plays the film's male lead. He plays a choreographer searching for just the right person to cast as Carmen in his upcoming dance version of "Carmen." Scouring Spanish dance studios looking for the perfect Carmen, he comes across voluptuous and irresistible del Sol, and like the myth, loses all self control.

Del Sol is immediately cast as Carmen despite her sub-par dancing skills and from that point on it becomes apparent that Saura is going to work on two levels. Gades, as Don Jose, is entranced by Carmen as per the opera; and on a different level Gades is similarly entranced by del Sol.

This works much the same way that the film version of John Fowles' "French Lieutenant's Woman" works — a parallel between a couple's relationship within a movie or play and their relationship off camera. In "French Lieutenant" this succeeds. In "Carmen" it doesn't.

It seemed that the movie would score big when it became clear that it operated in a parallel construction, but for a number of reasons "Carmen" just fell flat.

What little there was of the dialogue lent nothing to the film. Nothing of any meaning passed between the lead actors, which meant that the dance portion of the film had to carry the day.

The ending is remarkably ambiguous and abrupt. The audience, instead of leaving with a sense of purpose about the movie, leaves empty. Characters can't be believed or sympathized with, and when it's all done no one really cares what happens.

For those interested in dance, $2 to see "Carmen" in the Student Center might not be a bad deal, but don't look for much else.

Name's not hot, but Peppers are

By Jim Ludeman
Staff Writer

Their name isn't much, but the Red Hot Chili Peppers' self-titled debut album is a fair effort.

The lyrics to most of the songs border on the absurd, but the band has a steady beat and plenty of talent.

Side one opens with "True Men Don't Kill Coyotes," a punk song that demonstrates the talents of guitarist Jack Sherman.

"True Men" stands out because it is one of the few non-funk sounding songs and is hard core punk. Most of the other songs on the album have either heavy funk sounds or at least subtle indications of a funk influence.

The second song is a funk titled "Baby Appeal." This is a fast-moving, danceable number, describing the appeal the Red Hot Chili Peppers have on babies.

An Album Review

The third track, "Buckle Down," describes what a person must do to get through life. This song has more of a rock'n'roll sound to it than the previous songs.

"Get Up and Jump," the fourth song, is another funk-dance song that is fast and upbeat.

The first side closes with a remake of a Hank Williams song, "Why Don't You Love Me." It's a safe bet that Hank never intended for this song to become a punk-funk number, but the Red Hot Chili Peppers have turned it into one, and have done a fair job.

The Red Hot Chili Peppers rely strictly on the talents of guitarist Jack Sherman, drummer Cliff Martinez and the usual smattering of studio musicians such as Kenny Flood on tenor sax, whose talents are obvious throughout the album.

The rest of the band is nothing to sneeze at either. Anthony Kiedis, aside from co-writing nine of the 11 songs on the album, does an excellent job with the vocals, and of course, the backbone of any band, the bassist, known in this instance only as Flea, does a good job maintaining a rhythm.

While their name may not suggest serious musicians, and the liner photos betray them even more, the Red Hot Chili Peppers are talented musicians, and their first album is as strong a debut effort as any band could hope for.

Search, support group helps adoptees, parents find family

By Sarah Rohrs
Staff Writer

A chapter of Adoptees' Liberty Movement Association is being formed in Carbondale for adoptees, adoptive parents and parents whose children were adopted.

ALMA is a search and support group for adoptees and birthright parents trying to locate their parents or children, said Jill Oliver, a Carbondale resident.

However, many people join just for the support, Oliver said, they have no intention of searching for children or parents and there is no pressure on anyone to start searching.

The inclusion of adoptive parents is important, Oliver said, because many times there are threatening feelings or insecurities when adopted children want to search for their birth parents.

The media focus on the rejection and the negativity that can occur in the adoption triangle, problems which are very rare, Oliver said.

"So many people feel that if someone is searching for their biological family, they're unhappy with their adoptive parents. So far I haven't met anyone in that situation and it's hardly the situation in my case," Oliver said.

Adoptees are not searching for anyone to take their parents' places, because that would be impossible, Oliver said. "Why can't people understand that not knowing who their biological parents are is a big question for adoptees?"

By joining ALMA, Oliver has realized that successful reunions between adoptees and their biological parents are more common than the public realizes, she said. However, the court system and government agencies in the adoption process have made it very difficult for adoptees and birthparents to locate each other, Oliver said.

In addition, adoptees and birth parents are denied access to federal records that are open to other people under the Freedom of Information Act, Oliver said.

A series of search networks has developed, and ALMA is the largest, she said.

"Everything we do is legal, but if we can't get in through the front door, we go around to the back," she said.

The court system in almost every state seals documents and records concerning adoption procedures, even to adults, Oliver said.

All adults, including adoptees, have a right to their birth records, Oliver said. "We shouldn't be penalized for our adopted status."

ALMA and other adoption support groups are trying to get laws and statutes changed. Challenging them in court cases in one state will set precedents in other states, Oliver said.

Oliver said she became interested in locating her biological mother after she had her own daughter. After reading "The Search for Anna Fisher," written by ALMA founder Florence Fisher, she realized finding her biological mother would not be impossible.

The nearest ALMA support group is in Lebanon, and Oliver said the two groups will keep in close contact with each other. People interested in joining ALMA can call Jill Oliver at 549-5115.

Book says Hughes paid politicians

CHICAGO (AP) — Secret memos handwritten by the late Howard Hughes disclose an attempt to buy control of the White House through a series of payoffs to leading politicians of both parties, says Michael Drosnin, the author of a new book on the reclusive billionaire.

Excerpts from the book, "Citizen Hughes," appear in the November and December issues of Playboy magazine.

Spokesmen for the Hughes estate could not be located for comment by telephone Sunday. But Perry Lieber, who knew Hughes and who now is a consultant with the Summa Corp., the Nevada arm of the Hughes organization, said he "can't imagine" the reclusive trying to buy his way into the White House.

Lieber said by telephone Sunday that Hughes may have made political contributions, but he didn't think he'd made secret payments to politicians.

In his book, Drosnin also contended that former President Nixon instigated the 1972 Watergate break-in at the Democratic National Headquarters to cover his connection to Hughes while unmasking a similar relationship between Hughes and Larry O'Brien, then chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

O'Brien was not at his New York home Sunday and could not be reached for comment by telephone. An employee at Nixon's New York office said press spokesman John Taylor was unavailable for comment Sunday.

Drosnin, a former reporter for the Washington Post and Wall Street Journal newspapers, said O'Brien agreed to become Hughes' chief lobbyist in July 1968 and began collecting $15,000 a month from Hughes a year later.

Drosnin said Nixon knew this, and ordered aide H.R. Haldeman to obtain proof. That set in motion a cover campaign which led to the 1972 attempted bugging of Democratic headquarters, the author said.

Drosnin said Nixon's motivation was that O'Brien had knowledge of at least $100,000 in secret Hughes donations funneled to the president through Nixon's friend, Bebe Rebozo.

USO plans voter registration-education events

By David Liss
Staff Writer

To "combine registration with education" the Undergraduate Student Organization has scheduled several voter education programs, said Glenn Richardson, USO voter registration drive coordinator. The first event will be a discussion of church and social policy and will include a panel of five local clergy and lay people. The discussion will take place from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesday in the Student Center Thebes Room. Randy Patchett, Republican candidate for the 22nd District U.S. Congress seat, will hold a question-and-answer session Wednesday from 8 to 9 p.m. in Student Center Ballroom D.

After Patchett speaks, Sheila and Martin Simon, children of the Democratic candidate for U.S. Senate Paul Simon, will be present from 9 to 10 p.m. in the same location.

Members of the Southern Illinois Latin American Solidarity Committee will speak about U.S. support of terrorists in Nicaragua on Thursday from 7 to 10 p.m. in the Illinois Room.

"One purpose of these events will be to educate people on both sides of the issues," David Strong, USO chief of staff, said.

"At this point in the registration drive we have at least 4,000 students registered, maybe more," Richardson said. The USO goal is 10,000.

"Now we're moving in a new direction," he said. From now until the last day of at-large registration on Oct. 2, registrars will be going door-to-door "right to the individual," he said.

Geneticists study sickle cell anemia

By Justus Weathersby
Staff Writer

Although there is no cure for sickle cell anemia, genetic engineering may be able to do something about it, said Heloise Westbrook, SIU-C doctoral student in genetic counseling and community health.

Sickle cell anemia, a genetic blood disorder that largely affects blacks, causes red blood cells, which carry oxygen to body tissues, to become half-moon shaped. Carriers of the disorder may have chronic pain, constant feeling of tiredness, paleness, iron-poor blood and poor blood circulation, said Andrew Esposito, a physician at the Eurna Hayes Health Clinic.

The disorder also has been found in Greeks, Turks, Italians and other ethnic groups of the Mediterranean area, Esposito said.

The disease is an inherited disorder that originated in Middle Eastern countries many years ago, Esposito said, and although it is commonly called sickle cell in the United States, it is often called "Mediterranean fever" overseas.

"There is no real treatment for it," he said.

Interbreeding is the vehicle that transported sickle cell anemia from southern India into the lower Mediterranean coast and on to tropical Africa, Westbrook said.

Two individuals who do not have the disease but carry the trait for it in their genes can produce the anemia in their offspring, Westbrook said. The "distinct advantage" to having the trait is that it "provides some immunity" against malaria.

There is a 50-percent chance of having a healthy child if both parents have the trait, however, if one of them has the anemia and the other has the trait, the child will have sickle cell anemia, Westbrook said.

The major health problems connected with the disease are caused by reduced oxygen to body tissues and "increased thickness of the blood," Westbrook said.

Although blood transfusions are used to combat sickle cell anemia, the disease cannot be removed from the body by transfusion, Westbrook said. "It's not unusual" that patients who have a transfusion can "easily contract hepatitis."

Carriers of the anemia may also experience blood clottage and spleen deterioration because of red blood cells' inability to circulate correctly, however carriers of the trait may not experience "any problems whatsoever except in high altitudes," Westbrook said.

The sickle cell trait may go undetected. Blood tests may be used to determine whether a person has either the trait or the anemia, however Norman Geyer, pediatrician of Carbondale Clinic, said. "Blood tests for sickle cell are not standard practice."

Carriers of sickle cell anemia are susceptible to certain kinds of infections, Geyer said.

Motorist strikes student pedestrian

An SIU-C student was injured early Sunday morning by an allegedly intoxicated motorist while using the cross-walk at Washington and Grand streets, said Carbondale police.

Cathleen Raske, 18, was taken to Carbondale Memorial Hospital at 1:48 a.m., police said, and transferred to the SIU-C Health Service. The motorist, Jeffrey Kelly, 23, Fairview Heights, was arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol and released on $100 cash bond.

Visitors from Thailand school discuss exchange possibilities

By Kyu Ho Youm
Staff Writer

When he first traveled to SIU-C in 1977, Charoen Kanthawongs, president of Bangkok College, was returning the visit of then University President Warren Brandt.

And Thanu Kulachol, vice president for academic affairs of the Thai college, was then completing his doctoral studies in higher education at SIU-C.

The two came back to the University last Wednesday for their three-day stopover. This time, they weren't here for a return visit or for a doctoral program.

KANTHAWONGS AND Kulachol came to "recruit good professors" of management for their school, which has a student enrollment of 7,300.

"We'll open a business school in June 1985," said Kanthawongs, who has been president of the Thai school since 1962.

"We'd like to have scholars from American universities to teach. English is the medium of instruction. We'll provide them with housing, transportation and salaries equivalent to what they receive here."

Kulachol said SIU-C is among several major American universities on their faculty-recruiting trip.

NOTING THAT Thailand "still lacks faculty, both in quantity and in quality," he said. "We need a very good program for faculty development."

Kulachol, who took his job in 1977, has found that SIU-C is better "in every way" since he left seven years ago.

"Especially in the quality of faculty members and students," he said. "I think SIU-C has a more strict policy in admission and selects more quality students. This is why SIU-C is increasingly wanted by many other higher institutions for its new faculty."

THE UNIVERSITY. Kanthawongs said, has done a "good job" in training faculty for his school, which is one of the oldest private colleges in Thailand.

"We have adopted so many things from SIU-C when our mathematics department chairman and research institute director returned from their two-month study tour here," he said.

Kanthawongs added that two faculty members of Bangkok College are doing their graduate studies at SIU-C.

He termed his visit to the University "a great success."

Kulachol agreed, saying they had a "very fruitful talk" with University officials.

"We have explored possibilities for organizing senior management seminars and faculty exchange," he said. "The University has expressed its willingness to provide assistance to our faculty who will study here."

AMONG THE SIU-C faculty members the Thai visitors met with was Hussein H. Elsaid, coordinator of the doctoral program in business administration.

Elsaid said he talked with the Thais about how SIU-C's business college will help start the graduate program in business administration at Bangkok College.

"We discussed the possibility of our faculty going to Bangkok to help them," he said. "We'll continue with our discussion on that. Our college is interested in the development of Southeast Asia."

KANTHAWONGS SAID he expects to have a lot of opportunities for exchanges between his college and SIU-C.

Bangkok College has an ongoing faculty exchange program with Ohio State University, he said.

Kulachol gave some observations on the difference between American and Thai students.

While the Americans are "outspoken," the Thais are "rather shy," he said.

He also said that "Thus, American students are superior in class discussion. But when it comes to written exams, our students are not bad at all."

THIS, KULACHOL explained, in part stems from the fact that the Thai education is different from that of the United States.

"We give lectures more often than involve students in class discussion, as is done here. Thus, our students tend to be followers, not leaders, in getting their instruction in class."

Kulachol said he always considers SIU-C his "second home."

Student Orientation Committee plans leadership conference

By Susan Sarkauskas
Staff Writer

"Opening the Doors to Leadership," a conference sponsored by the Student Orientation Committee of Student Orientation Programs, will be held at the Touch of Nature Environmental Center Sept. 29-30.

The workshop is open to SIU-C students who want to learn to deal with conflicts and problems involved in working in group situations, said Daniel Nadler, graduate assistant with the Student Orientation Programs.

Most of the participants are involved with one of the more than 350 Recognized Student Organizations at SIU-C.

"Basically, the sessions are developed to help them run their groups more effectively," he said. Nadler said he thinks that now is the best time to hold the conference, because many of the organizations have recently elected officers, who are not accustomed to the activities and problems involved with running a group.

Topics to be discussed in the sessions include communication in organizations — how to get messages through the organization, how to promote the group, its activities and its fund-raising events.

A special session on planning fund-raising events will teach the participants new ideas for generating money, and how to get sponsors for their activities, Nadler said.

Delegation and motivation skills will also be taught. Nadler said many of the RSOs, which were surveyed to find out what problems the conference should address, have problems with this.

"I think a group runs a lot better when it tries to get each member of the group involved in some type of responsibility," he said. "Even if it is a small task, getting every member involved creates a type of investment."

Participants will be able to choose from about 14 sessions at the conference.

Nadler said another objective for the conference is to help members of RSOs become acquainted with each other, and share ideas on how to solve problems in their organizations, as well as exchanging information on activities.

About 10 faculty members and administrative staff will conduct the sessions.

The cost of the conference is $6 per person. Buses will leave the Student Center at 8 a.m. to take participants to Touch of Nature. Saturday dinner and Sunday breakfast are included in the price, as is cabin rental.

Anyone interested may register at the Office of Student Development on the third floor of the Student Center. Registration ends at 5 p.m. Wednesday.

Royals lose, Twins win to tie AL West

A's 5, Royals 1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Rickey Henderson singled, doubled and slammed a two-run homer Sunday, carrying the Oakland A's to a 5-1 victory over Kansas City and dropping the Royals into a first-place tie with Minnesota in the American League West.

The Twins, entering the day a game behind Kansas City, beat Cleveland 5-1. California, which lost 2-1 in 10 innings to Texas, remained in third place, 1.5 games behind.

Chris Codiroli held the Royals to four hits until Bill Caudill relieved him in the seventh and finished up for his 34th save. The loser was Mike Jones, 2-3.

Henderson also stole his 60th base of the season and scored two runs. He left the game with a jammed finger he suffered stealing third base after doubling to lead off the game. He scored on a sacrifice fly by Joe Morgan.

With one out in the second, Jim Essian walked, went to second on a fielder's choice and scored ahead of Henderson's 15th homer run.

Dave Kingman walked leading off the third and stole second. Dwayne Murphy then blasted an RBI double to put Oakland ahead 4-0 and bring Frank Wills in from the bullpen. Murphy went to third and Mike Heath reached base on Wills' fielding error and Bruce Bochte hit a sacrifice fly for a 5-0 Oakland advantage.

Jorge Orta led off the fourth for Kansas City with his eighth homer run.

Twins 5, Indians 1

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) —

Sunday games

Randy Bush smacked a two-run, tie-breaking homer and Rick Lysander pitched four scoreless innings in relief to lift the Minnesota Twins over the Cleveland Indians 5-1 Sunday.

The victory was the Twins' fourth in a row as they fought to catch first-place Kansas City in the American League West.

Minnesota's Mike Smithson, Ed Hodge, Lysander, 4-3, and Ron Davis combined on a five-hitter. Davis finished up for his 29th save.

The score was tied 1-1 in the sixth when Jerry Ujdur, 1-2, walked Kent Hrbek. Bush then homered to put Minnesota ahead 3-1.

In the Twins second, Hrbek hit a leadoff double and later scored on Tim Teufel's single.

Smithson allowed only three hits in the first five innings, but was forced to leave the game with a sore neck.

Hodge replaced him and walked Willard to start the sixth. He threw a wild pitch that sent Willard to second. Lysander replaced Hodge.

Willard moved to third on pinch-hitter Broderick Perkins' flyout and came home on Brett Butler's sacrifice fly to tie the game 1-1.

The Twins got insurance runs in the eighth on Brunansky's two-run double.

White Sox 4, Mariners 0

CHICAGO (AP) — Britt Burns and Ron Reed combined on a three-hitter and Vance Law had three hits and drove in two runs, leading the Chicago White Sox to a 4-0 victory over the Seattle Mariners Sunday.

The result ended Chicago's three-game losing streak and Seattle's five-game winning streak.

Burns, 4-11, retired the first 13 batters before Steve Henderson doubled with one out in the fifth. Burns struck out four and walked three before getting last-out relief help from Reed, who recorded his 11th save.

Mike Moore, 6-17, took the loss.

Chicago took the lead in the second when Carlton Fisk doubled and scored on Law's single. Law led off the fifth with his 17th homer.

Law also singled to open the seventh and scored on Ron Kittle's pinch, two-run double.

Rangers 2, Angels 1

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Pinch-hitter Marv Foley's two-out single in the 10th inning scored pinch-runner Billy Sample from third base to give the Texas Rangers a 2-1 victory over the California Angels Sunday.

Larry Parrish led off the Rangers' 10th with a double off Jim Slaton, 7-9. Sample ran for him and took third on George Wright's fly to right. Bobby Jones was walked intentionally and Slaton fanned pinch-hitter Bill Stein before Foley delivered his winning hit.

Right-hander Dave Stewart, 6-14, pitched all 10 innings for only his second complete game. Stewart walked two, struck out three and held the Angels to four hits.

The Rangers, held to two hits through seven innings by Slaton, tied the score at 1-1 with two outs in the eighth. Donnie Scott looped a double into left-center and pinch-hitter Tommy Dunbar singled to score pinch-runner Jeff Kunkel.

Brian Downing's solo homer, his 22nd, with one out in the second inning had given California a 1-0 lead.

Red Sox 6, Orioles 2

BALTIMORE (AP) — Tony Armas and Jim Rice, battling for the major-league lead in runs batted in, each cracked two-run homers as the Boston Red Sox whipped the fading Baltimore Orioles 6-2 Sunday.

Rice had an RBI sacrifice fly in addition to his 28th homer, giving him the lead with 121 RBI. Armas tops the majors with 42 homers, and has 119 RBI after starting the day tied with Oakland's Dave Kingman.

Armas connected for his homer in the first off Dennis Martinez, 6-9. Rice was on board with a double.

Rice homered behind a single by Boggs in the fifth and, after Martinez departed, Rich Gedman added an RBI single off Tom Underwood.

Reliever John Henry Johnson, 1-2, got the win. Mark Clear struck out the last three Baltimore batters.

Brewers 8, Blue Jays 5

TORONTO (AP) — Doug Loman hit his first two major league home runs and Jim Sundberg doubled in the winning run in Milwaukee's three-run eighth inning to power the Brewers to a 8-5 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays Sunday.

Loman opened the eighth with a homer off Roy Lee Jackson, 7-8, to tie the score 5-5, and Bobby Clark followed with a triple.

Jimmy Key came on to relieve Jackson and after one out, Sundberg doubled to break the tie. Tony Lozado doubled home the final run of the inning.

Loman then homered with one out in the ninth for the Brewers' final run.

Jim Kern, 1-0, won in relief of Bob McClure, and Ray Searge recorded his sixth save.

Tigers 4, Yankees 1

DETROIT (AP) — Jack Morris teamed with two relievers on a two-hitter Sunday for his 19th victory as the Detroit Tigers beat the New York Yankees 4-1.

The win made Sparky Anderson the first manager in major league history to win 100 games in both leagues. Anderson's Cincinnati Reds teams won more than 100 games in 1970, 1975, and 1976 in the National League.

Marty Castillo drove in two runs with a single and a homer, Kirk Gibson homered and Lance Parrish singled home a run as Detroit — which clinched the American League East title Tuesday — raised its record to 100-55 and stymied the Yankees' efforts to gain on second-place Toronto.

Morris, 19-11, allowed a single in the third to Omar Moreno and one in the fourth to Oscar Gamble, before Bill Scherrer retired the side in the seventh.

DeNoon stays positive despite women harriers' injury woes

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

Don DeNoon, the Saluki women's cross country coach, doesn't make a fuss over losing players to injuries. But DeNoon could have every right to complain, because the Salukis have been hit hard by injuries this year.

Lisa Reimund and Lori Ann Bertram, the Salukis' top two finishers from last year's Gateway Conference Championships, will likely be sidelined for the remainder of the season.

Reimund, who finished fifth in the conference meet last year with a time of 17 minutes and 30.42 seconds and was selected to the all-conference team, suffered a stress fracture in her right leg in preseason. She had the misfortune of missing the indoor and outdoor track season this past spring because of a stress fracture to her left leg.

Bertram has been bothered by tendonitis in her lower leg and freshman Dawn Nease has tendonitis in her achilles tendon. But DeNoon said Nease is recovering from the injury and she'll run Thursday at Ball State.

Sally Zack and Lisa Hicks, two of the top runners on this year's team, each missed one meet this year due to minor ailments but both are now healthy. Bonnie Helmick was ill early in the season, but DeNoon said she has regained her health and only needs to get back in shape.

DeNoon said he has accepted the injuries and said he hopes to get a maximum effort from each of his healthy athletes for the remainder of the season. DeNoon said he hopes the team can improve in each meet and peak at the end of the season.

"If you put tremendous emphasis on the injured athletes, it isn't fair to the ones who are competing," DeNoon said. "They decide the outcome, not the athletes who aren't here."

DeNoon said if he made a big issue out of the injuries, it would have a negative effect on the rest of the team.

"I'm not going to go up to the team and say, 'I'm sorry, we don't have Lisa Reimund and Lori Ann Bertram this weekend,'" DeNoon said. "The athletes will be thinking that I don't have any confidence in them. My emphasis is you compete with what you have, and you don't look back."

DeNoon said he has been pleased with the progress of the team this season. Four of the top five Saluki finishers Saturday turned in personal bests against Illinois.

"We have made tremendous progress from last year," DeNoon said. "We need someone to run like Lisa Reimund did last year, a frontrunner. We got some kids who can be frontrunners, and if they come through we'll have an outstanding year."

Rugby club edged by Springfield

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

The SIU-C rugby team made a strong second-half comeback, but fell short Saturday against the Springfield Rugby Club, 22-21.

"It was a pretty physical game," said forward Michael Madden. "We were in better shape, but they were more physical."

The Salukis were down 16-4 at halftime, but John Heffernan scored a try early in the second half to slice the lead to 16-8. Madden said Heffernan's goal turned the game around for the Salukis.

"After we scored early in the second half everybody got fired up," he said. "We were back in the game and that really got us going. If we had played the whole game with the intensity we showed in the second half, we would have won by at least two tries."

After the Salukis scored a try late in the game to close the gap to 22-21, Rick Hanetho attempted the extra point, which is worth 2 points. But his kick sailed six inches wide of the crossbar.

Four players scored for SIU-C, 1-2 overall. Heffernan had two tries. Bill Danielak had one try, and Hanetho had a try, a penalty kick, and an extra point.

Madden said it didn't help the Salukis that a member from the Springfield team officiated, calling the game suited to Springfield's aggressive style of play. Madden said when the Salukis have home games, they try to get a union referee to officiate from the Illinois Rugby Football Union.

Cards regroup after loss to New Orleans

By Paul LeBar
Of the Associated Press

ST. LOUIS (AP) — More than the hangover of a 34-24 defeat at the hands of the New Orleans Saints lingered Monday within the ranks of the battered St. Louis Cardinals.

Morning examinations confirmed the loss of cornerbacks Lionel Washington and Cedric Mack with shoulder injuries. Since Mack also doubled as the National Football League team's third wide receiver, the setbacks weakened two positions.

A decision was expected soon on whether Mack, the more seriously injured of the two, would be placed on injured reserve. St. Louis Coach Jim Hanifan said.

"Right now, Lionel Washington is a 2-3 week period. That can change. It could be a week; possibly he might be ready for the Dallas game (Oct. 7)," Hanifan said. "With Cedric, his shoulder came out. It's a dislocation. It will probably be six weeks."

Hanifan said the Cards, whose weakened pass defense enabled New Orleans to glide 76 yards to a winning touchdown in the fourth quarter, will move strong safety Leonard Smith to the left cornerback spot at which Washington and Mack performed.

"It's not going to be anything too tough for me, being that I was drafted to play corner," said Smith, a second-year player from McNeese State. "I'm doing some plays (there) in 'nickel' and 'dime' situations. I'll just be getting things down under my belt and eliminating mistakes."

As Smith shifts to corner, Lee Nelson will return to his old post at strong safety and either Steve Bird or No. 1 draft choice Clyde Duncan will replace Mack as St. Louis' third wide receiver.

Another concern for the Cards, who will meet the undefeated Miami Dolphins in St. Louis Sunday, is running back Otis Anderson. The sixth-year player suffered recurrence of a hamstring pull against the Saints and may be idled.

"ESTABLISHED SERVICE YOU CAN DEPEND ON"

CUBS: First title since 1945

took over the Cubs in 1981, he started dealing with the Phillies. He acquired, among others, Larry Bowa, Ryne Sandberg and Keith Moreland. The Cubs became known as "Philadelphia West."

During the final week of spring training this year, Green struck another deal with the Phillies. He traded relief pitcher Bill Campbell for outfielders Bob Dernier and Gary Matthews.

Frey immediately put Matthews in left and Dernier in center and brought Leon Durham from the outfield to his natural position at first base — much to the chagrin of Bill Buckner, the Cubs' leading hitter and 1980 National League batting champion.

BUCKNER WAS unhappy. So was Moreland, platooning with Mel Hall in right field. But it gave Frey a strong bench — and Green some trading power.

He swapped Buckner to Boston for pitcher Dennis Eckersley. A month later Green pulled off the coup that was to lead to the title, trading Hall, outfielder Joe Carter and pitcher Don Schulze to Cleveland for pitchers Rick Sutcliffe and George Frazier, and catcher Ron Hassey.

SUTCLIFFE WON 16 of his first 17 decisions, including 14 in a row, to quickly become the ace of the staff. And Frazier helped shore up the bullpen.

The deal also helped soothe the ego of Moreland. With Hall gone, he again became the regular right fielder. Moreland regained the form which the previous season, when he hit .302 with 16 home runs and 70 runs batted in.

THE PITCHING was set despite injuries which sidelined Dick Ruthven and Scott Sanderson, the lineup was loaded with power. Under the astute managing of Frey, who rested key players judiciously, the Cubs kept rolling kept rolling.

LATE IN July, they went to New York for a crucial series with the Mets, an equally surprising contender. Chicago lost the first game to rookie sensation Dwight Gooden, then won the next three.

The Cubs returned home to take two of three from the Phillies and grabbed first place Aug. 1. Then won three of four from Montreal and, against the visiting Mets, swept a four-game series to cement their hold on the division lead.

"WHEN I first came here in 1981 I looked over the minor-league system and saw there was a little talent there," Green said, "but I also knew nobody would be knocking down our doors for trades."

"I had to make trades but I also needed an edge in manpower. I had to get two for one or three for two even if it meant trading away some prospects," said Green. "I accomplished that in every trade."

STILL, THERE were no results until this year. The Cubs finished 73-89 in 1982 and 71-91 last year.

"I was respected in Philadelphia by my peers, the media and management, but I soon had the feeling here that the fans and the media weren't accepting me as a baseball man."

THAT HAS all changed and, interestingly, what set off the deals enabling Green to acquire Dernier, Matthews, Eckersley and Sutcliffe was what seemed an insignificant move last spring.

Green picked up reliever Tim Lincecum from Oakland for a pair of minor leaguers.

"Stoddard looked so good that we were able to trade Campbell to Philadelphia for Dernier and Matthews and after that it was a domino effect," Green said. "Everything began falling into place."

DIXON: Still the no. 1 quarterback

"There can be missed blocks, or the running back can miss a cut and nobody sees it. But if the quarterback makes a mistake, there is great focus."

"But Darren Dixon is not the reason the Salukis haven't been winning. The Salukis haven't been winning because we have given up big plays, we're young and we're inconsistent."

Dixon has taken the criticism that has come his way in stride. The senior said he realizes that quarterback is a demanding position, and that the criticism

FRESHMEN:

Won't be playing

performed well on the exam. Dorr said the pair must perform better in order to gain playing time.

"They've had a difficult time with the exam, but that's not because they are dumb," he said. "They need to concentrate. They have to approach each week as if they're the starter. Right now, the thing it would take for them to play immediately would be an injury to another quarterback."

While neither King or Brown is ready to challenge Dixon yet, Dorr said Graves will get another opportunity to play again on Saturday when the Salukis travel to Southeast Missouri State. Dorr said he likes the way Graves has moved the ball in practice and in the two games in which he's played, and deserves another look.

"Darren's still our starter but how are we going to find out how well Graves can play? Graves will get another chance to play," he said.

Dorr said he is looking most of all for someone to step out and take charge of the quarterback position at this point in the season.

"We're looking for someone to take charge, to take the bull by the horns and say 'I'll be the Saluki quarterback this fall,'" he said. "Darren's said this, but he continues to have some trouble. Until he gets firm control, we'll continue to evaluate the position."

is part of the price paid for being a signal caller.

"It bothers me somewhat," he said. "But most of the fans don't know anything about football anyway. All they know is whether or not we score a touchdown. So I don't let the pressure get to me all that much."

Dixon's job was in jeopardy last week, but his performance against Arkansas State (10 pass completions in 21 attempts for 148 yards) has enabled him to gain a firm hold on the starting quarterback job as the Salukis prepare for Saturday's game at Southeast Missouri State.

"Darren's going to start. He'll be the one to bark out the signals," Dorr said. "We'll give Graves a chance to play sometime in the game, but Darren's our starter right now."

Dixon said he is intent on holding onto the job, and said if he avoids throwing interceptions he should be able to do so. Dixon threw one interception against Arkansas State, compared to seven interceptions in the first three games.

"That (the interceptions) stands out because one of my goals at the start of the season was to stay away from the interceptions," Dixon said. "That's something I'll continue to work at."

"I hope I can continue to be the starting quarterback. I'll go out and work hard, and what happens, happens."

Cubs end long drought by clinching title

CHICAGO (AP) — It's over. One of the longest dry spells in professional sports history ended when the Chicago Cubs clinched the National League East championship.

It ended with a flourish, a runaway by a team that was picked before the season to finish fifth or sixth.

It erased 39 years of mediocrity and frustration.

It came under the guidance of a new manager, Jim Frey, and the astute maneuvering of a maligned general manager, Dallas Green, whose reputation had started to slip under a losing tradition.

It came as a result of astute trades in which everything fell into place as if by divine intervention.

It put an end to the excuse that a team playing day baseball exclusively at home would wear

Sutcliffe powers Cubs past Buc

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Rick Sutcliffe pitched a two-hitter for his 14th straight win Monday night, helping the Chicago Cubs capture their first championship in 39 years as they won the National League East title, beating the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-1.

Chicago jumped on Pirates starter Larry McWilliams for solo runs in each of the first three innings and then breezed behind Sutcliffe, 16-1, who tied the team record for consecutive victories while striking out nine and walking none.

The Cubs took a 1-0 lead in the first when Ryne Sandberg lined the first of his two doubles and came home on Gary Matthews' single, his league-high 19th game winning RBI.

The Cubs will open the best-of-five NL Championship Series on Oct. 2 at home against the San Diego Padres, the NL West winners. Chicago and San Diego began the season as the only NL teams never to win a title since divisional play started in 1969.

down and could not win a championship.

THE CUBS had not won one since 1945, and they were saddled with the infamous collapse in 1969 under Manager Leo Durocher, when they blew a 9.5-game lead to the New York Mets in August.

"We had nothing to do with it and didn't play on the 1969 team," insisted third baseman Ron Cey, one of Green's numerous acquisitions.

For the past 12 years they never had a winning season, the best one being 81-81 in 1977. Last year they finished fifth and Manager Lee Elia, who had been hired by Green, was fired by him.

FROM THE time they won the pennant in 1945 until now, the Cubs had 15 different managers. And there was that 1961-65 stretch when the late owner, P. K. Wrigley, made them a joke in baseball circles with his "College of Coaches." There was no single manager, various coaches running the team at different times.

Even this past spring, under Frey, the team appeared headed toward another season of futility.

"We lost 11 straight exhibition games," Frey said. "I didn't have a leadoff man and we didn't have an outfielder who could catch the ball. I started to wonder what I had gotten into."

Quarterbacks take heat for Dogs' woes

Dixon remains starter despite offensive troubles

By Mike Frey

When a football team has trouble scoring points, the quarterback will inevitably take the blame.

The quarterback stands at the center of attention; he's the most visible player on the team. When the offense doesn't perform well, he takes the blame.

That's the position SIU-C signal caller Darren Dixon finds himself in now. The Salukis have scored 41 points in four games this season, and were shut out in their game against Arkansas State last Saturday.

Dixon has struggled this season, completing 36 of 85 passes for 499 yards with two touchdowns and eight interceptions. As a result, Dixon has become the target of criticism, and some people are looking for Dixon to relinquish his starting spot to either sophomore Joe Graves or possibly freshmen Pat King and Kevin Brown.

But Dixon is not the only cause for the Salukis' inability to produce points. The SIU-C offense has been plagued by missed blocks, dropped passes, penalties and broken plays this season, all of which have contributed to SIU-C's dismal start.

"The most evident thing in the offense is the quarterback," Saluki Coach Ray Dorr said.

Dorr still hesitant to use freshman quarterbacks

The SIU-C offense has been in a season-long slump, and Coach Ray Dorr and his staff are searching for ways to inject some firepower into the struggling unit.

One possibility that has been mentioned is a change in quarterbacks. Senior Darren Dixon has been the starter throughout the season, but it has been rumored that Dixon may lose his position to either sophomore Joe Graves or freshmen Pat King or Kevin Brown.

If Dixon does lose his spot, however, it will likely be to Graves rather than either of the freshmen. Dorr said both King and Brown have shown promise, but he didn't think either player was ready to take over as the Salukis' signal caller yet.

"I'm not going to put either of them in a varsity football game until I know they're capable of playing at that level," he said. "I think they are physically capable, but they need to improve their mental approach."

Dorr said a test of the game plan is given every Friday to the Saluki quarterbacks and, so far, neither King or Brown has

Tough weekend drops Saluki spikers to .500

By Martin Folan
Staff Writer

At the Texas A and M Classic last weekend, the SIU-C volleyball team went in with a 9-7 record for the season. But when they left Texas, the Salukis found themselves with a .500 record.

In the first match, the Salukis faced Florida State University.

The Salukis won the match 3-0.

games to 1, but the Seminoles matched SIU-C point-for-point to the end.

Both teams committed a series of errors, Hunter said. But the Seminoles' mistakes ultimately cost them the match.

Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference rival Illinois State, ranked 16th in the nation, brought an 8-0 record against the Salukis.

An upset was in the making as SIU-C won the first two games, 16-14 and 15-9.

The Redbirds reorganized, however, and the Salukis fell apart. ISU took the next three games easily, winning 15-6, 15-11 and 15-7.

Louisiana State, ranked 17th, played the Salukis next, beating SIU-C in five games.

LSU slipped by the Salukis the first game 15-12, but was hit hard in the second game by the attacks of middle blocker Pat Nicholson and outside hitter Chris Boyd, giving the Salukis a 15-3 victory.

The Tigers beat the Salukis the next game by a score of 15-10. SIU-C then won the fourth game, 15-4.

Inconsistency on the part of SIU-C allowed the Tigers a 15-6 victory.

Hunter said the match was "a little like Las Vegas. You don't know who's going to be in favor until the end."

LSU won the match 3-2.

In the final match, the Salukis were matched against Texas A and M, the host. The Aggies were the toughest team in the tournament, Hunter said.

"They showed me more as a total team," she said.

Texas A and M sent the Salukis home, defeating them 15-3, 15-6 and 15-4.
